

The Point Cook air base is the birthplace of Australian military aviation. It is perhaps one of the oldest and longest continuously serving airfields in the world.

The RAAF air base is a significant historical and cultural landmark of Point Cook. It is the birthplace of the Australian Flying Corps and the Royal Australian Air Force. It is the oldest, longest serving military airfield in the world that continue to fly military aircrafts.